“Plenty of very deep and well-formed fruit is married to intense, equally plentiful varietal grassiness here, and, while many Sauvignons are as convincingly herbal, few are fit with such a fine sense of fruit. The wine is a touch supple in feel yet is as well-structured as any, and it holds on and on at the finish. It is bound to better with another year in the bottle, but it has the potential to grow and to improve for many more years.”
