

CADARETTA, Columbia Valley
2011 SBS

92 POINTS

“Sadly, there aren’t too many true white Bordeaux-style blends produced in the U.S. these days. The reasons are unclear, for when well made these are among the best food wines to be drunk. This one from Cadaretta is a wonderful example of the genre as well as the potential for winemakers who might like to take a stab at one of these Sauvignon Blanc-Semillon blends. The Sauvignon delivers intense citrus and melon aromas, the Semillon a touch of fig. It’s a delicious combo.”

-AUGUST 28, 2012

MIDDLETON
FAMILY WINES

